Handy Ellis Governor Thurmond Governor Wright Governor Laney

HERE ARE THE STATES AND LEADERS involved in the southern "revolt" of the Democratic party. A "rump" convention scheduled at Birmingham, Ala., was described by Mississippi's Gov. Fielding L. Wright as a "grass roots meeting to determine what we shall do from here on." South Carolina's Gov. J. Strom Thurmond was an early leader against President Truman's civil rights program, which precipitated the "revolt" when civil rights was made a plank in the party platform. Handy Ellis as chairman of the Alabama delegation led his state's delegates in their convention walkout. Governor Wright led the Mississippi walkout. Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas declined to let his name be placed in nomination with the civil rights plank in the party's platform.

Child Welfare Group Urges Employment Of Case Worker

Sixteen leaders interested in Pickaway County's child welfare program Friday night passed two resolutions in an effort to solve that problem. The combined group is made up of the county welfare board, the board of county commissioners and representatives from 10 civic organizations. It was formed to investigate child welfare conditions here and to make suggestions for a better program.

One resolution recommended that the county welfare board hire a case worker.

The second recommended that the board of county commissioners make improvements at the county children's home to bring the home up to health requirements with regard to toilets, lighting and crowded conditions.

Of the 16 persons present, seven voted for each recommendation. On the vote concerning the case worker, six members of the welfare abstained from voting while three others refused to ballot.

ON THE BALLOT concerning improvements, one abstained (a commissioner) while eight refused to vote.

There were no negative ballots on either issue. The two recommendations form a foundation upon which the child welfare committee hopes to build a future program.

Dr. David Goldschmidt, who headed the original Kiwanis Club child welfare committee, was general chairman of the Friday night meeting.

In addition to the two recommendations, Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, was asked to prepare a new list of items which he believes are necessary for the improvement of the children's home.

He said the list would be virtually a copy of a list he made a

Dixiecrats Opening Convention

All-Out Battle Being Mapped

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 17—Southern political leaders who bolted the Democratic national convention at Philadelphia labored until dawn today on what they termed the framework of a fourth major party.

They prepared a series of resolutions calling for an all-out battle against President Truman and the present Democratic leadership.

The self-styled "Jeffersonian Democrats," representing 13 Dixie states from Maryland to Texas, convened at Birmingham to discuss and probably adopt their campaign plans.

These plans include a move to oppose the Democratic ticket of President Truman and Sen. Alben W. Barkley, (D) Ky., in their home states. However, no delegates from Missouri, the President's home state, and Kentucky were present at the rump convention.

FORMER Alabama Gov. Frank M. Dixon was named temporary chairman of the session. He predicted that at least 5,000 persons would attend today's meeting.

The three Southern governors who spearheaded the "states' rights" movement before and during the Democratic convention were scheduled to be present. They are Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi who arrived last night, J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Ben Laney of Arkansas.

Preliminary plans call for the selection of an anti-civil rights candidate for whom the South can vote in the electoral colleges.

Another resolution lays the groundwork for a platform on which the Jeffersonian Democratic nominee can make his stand. The platform would oppose proposed federal civil rights legislation and firmly proclaim the principle of states' rights.

An armed posse of Circleville police and sheriff's deputies Saturday morning scoured the South Bloomfield area for two suspects wanted for the fatal shooting last Saturday of Earl C. Ambrose, Columbus tavern owner.

One man, who bore a remarkable resemblance to descriptions released by Columbus police, was apprehended by the posse and taken to the Capitol City for questioning. He was not one of the suspects.

One of the men was believed to be Robert Muri Daniels, 24, of Columbus, whose name was released Saturday by Columbus detectives as one of the suspects wanted for questioning. Identity of the second man was not disclosed.

Truman To Seek Drastic Powers To Curb Inflation

WASHINGTON, July 17—President Truman will ask Congress when it convenes in special session for drastic powers to halt rising prices.

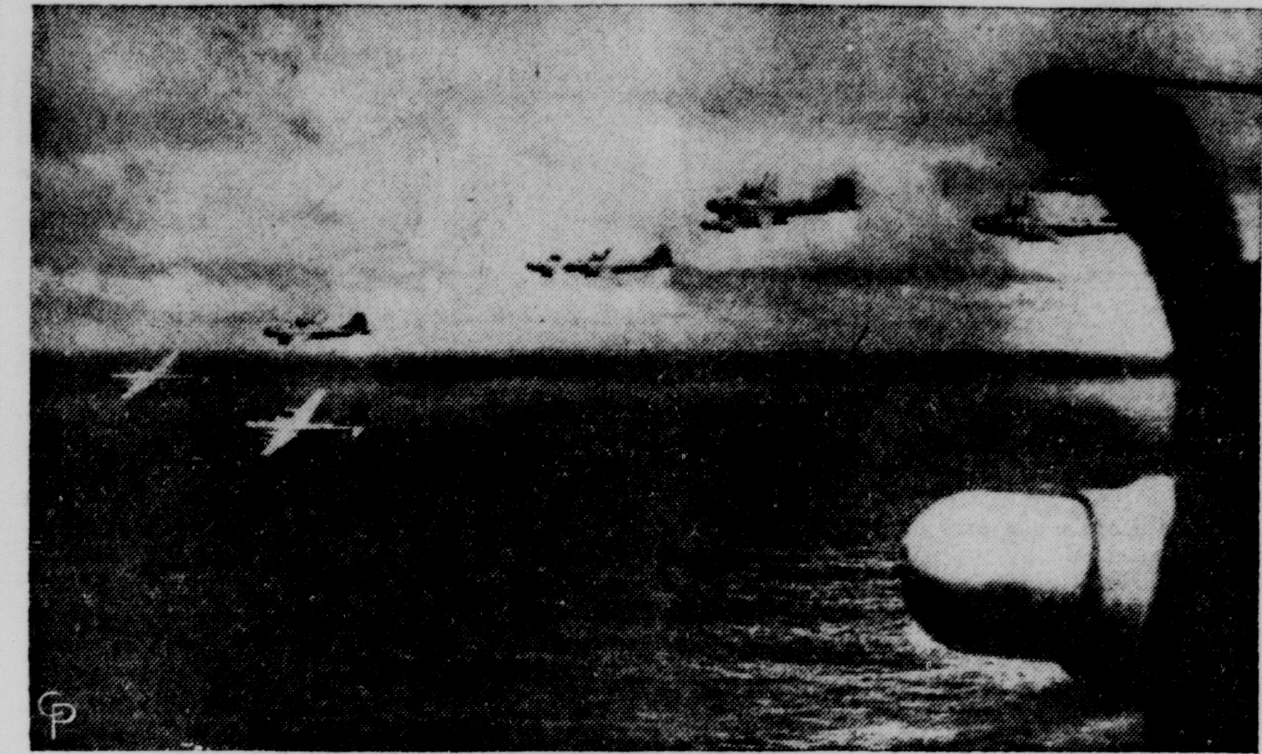

The chief executive is expected to junk the rather moderate 10-point price control program, which the Republican majority in Congress refused to pass last December, and substitute in its stead far more stringent legislation.

The main theme of the President's message to the special session, it is understood, will be the alarming continued zooming of prices of such basic things as food, clothing and housing.

Mr. Truman will tell Congress in no uncertain terms that he believes the country is headed for a tragic economic collapse unless someone in top authority is able to grab hold of the reins and pull them tight.

PERSONS AROUND the President point out that the control measures the President asked the Congress for seven months ago—mild standby controls—were adapted to deal with a situation where prices were not yet

Russians Intensify Task Of Needling West Powers

BERLIN, July 17—Russia intensified her harassment of the Western air lift to Berlin today by announcing a huge program of aerial maneuvers in the air corridor linking Western Germany with the former capital.

The Soviets outlined a tremendous schedule of flights, involving almost every type of Russian aircraft, concentrated within the Berlin air safety corridor near the Tempelhof and Gatow airdromes.

These are the receiving ends of the Anglo-American aerial bridge to the encircled city.

However, a U. S. official in Berlin said that the Soviet flight warnings were "worthless" in that they failed to detail the precise number of planes and the exact altitudes at which they will be flying.

The official expressed the belief that the Russian announcement was intended mainly to "throw confusion" into the Western air schedules.

Said the spokesman:

"IF THE RUSSIANS actually sent aloft all the planes they have listed in the warnings, it would inevitably snarl traffic and produce a number of crashes."

He said the Soviet campaign to drive the Allies from using the air was proceeding in three stages. The first was the printing of warnings in the Russian-controlled press. The second was the issuance of flight warnings, and the third would be the actual flights in the air corridors.

In another development concerning traffic, it was learned that the Russians lifted their ban on German vehicular traffic to the Soviet zone.

Previously German vehicles required special passes issued only by the Soviet military administration at Karlshorst.

Germans reported Russia is reinforcing troop concentrations along the border between the Soviet and western occupation zones after the Westerners took strong counter-measures against the Berlin blockade.

The powerful German Christian Democratic Union defied the "brutal blockade" and put itself squarely behind Western power efforts to smash the Soviet siege.

JAKOB KAISER, Berlin Christian Democratic chairman told a cheering mass rally:

"For the German people there is only one choice—to show the Soviets that not one real German party is ready to play the handyman under a totalitarian regime."

Jerusalem Fighting Is Halted

Jews Break Into Old Walled City

TEL AVIV, July 17—Fighting ended in Jerusalem at dawn today in response to the United Nations truce order.

Israeli forces battled to consolidate strategic advantages in Northern and Central Palestine in expectation that the cease-fire will go into effect throughout the Holy Land at 11 a. m. (EST) tomorrow. This is the deadline set by UN Mediator Count Folke Bernadotte.

Israeli sources claimed that holy city hostilities ceased as Jewish forces were smashing into the walled old city, principal Arab stronghold in Jerusalem.

They said that Jewish troops, after breaching the walls in two places under cover of an artillery and mortar barrage, were advancing "satisfactorily" when the cease-fire was sounded.

The sources added that the attack was being carried out by a combined force of regular Haganah troops and soldiers of Ir-gun Zvai Leumi and the Stern Gang, the two extremist Jewish organizations.

THE ISRAELI government announced yesterday its acceptance of the United Nations truce on all fronts—including Jerusalem—except the Arabs did likewise.

In Amman, the Trans-Jordan capital, the Arab League political committee agreed to a Jerusalem cease-fire at 7 p. m. (EST) last night. As yet, no word has been received from the Arabs indicating their position.

CHICAGO, July 17—Seventeen persons were burned or injured today when a Chicago-bound Greyhound bus collided with a trailer truck and burst into flames at a street intersection on Chicago's southeast side.

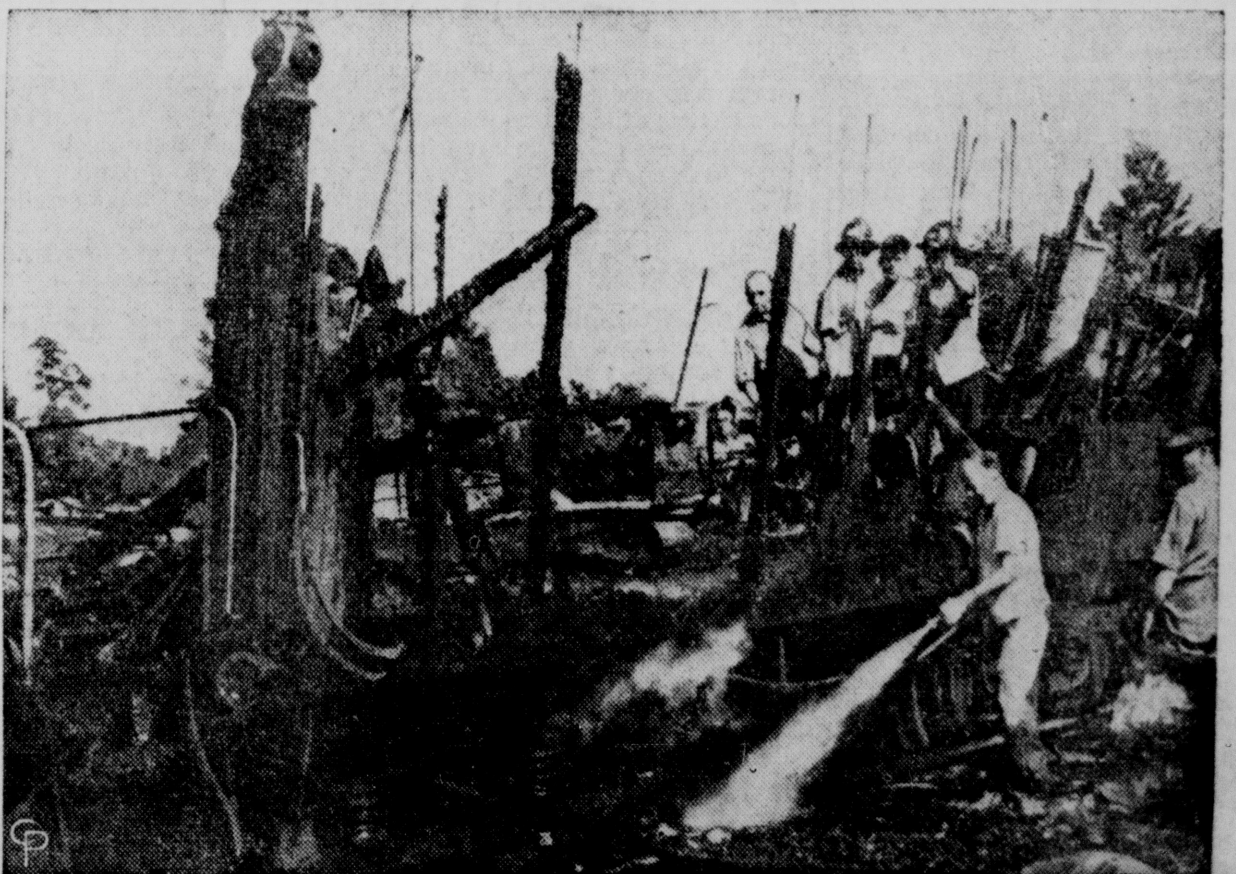

Physicians at South Chicago hospital where the injured were taken said that all would recover.

The bus carried 24 passengers. Eight apparently escaped injury. Two of the injured were small children.

A 90-gallon gasoline tank on the truck exploded and enveloped the front part of the bus and the truck in flames.

The passengers, however, were able to escape through the rear door of the bus.

as high as they have become during the last half year.

They say that the situation has changed considerably, that prices have now reached the all-time peak in virtually every purchasable commodity, especially food, and that the President's legislative request for authority to handle the price situation must now deal with the price problem as it is today.

The President is expected to recommend not only price ceilings on the basic commodities required by the individual for mere living but for powers to roll back some of the more important areas of today's extremely high prices.

Coupled with this, the President will ask for authority to ration commodities that are basic in the nation's industrial economy, such as steel, and which now still remain in extremely high demand and short supply.

The President also is expected to ask for authority to allocate basic materials.

The President's main worry now on high prices, however, is the fact that the prices of food have increased so alarmingly and so steadily over the past six months, despite the fact that now government forecasts are for the greatest crops in the nation's history.

MEANWHILE, Republican leaders in Congress tentatively scheduled a meeting for late next week to map their strategy for the special session.

They were hampered, however, by the inability to locate Senate GOP Policy Chairman Taft of Ohio, who was motoring toward his Murray Bay, Quebec, Summer home and apparently keeping away from telephones.

It was learned, however, that other congressional leaders were in touch with one another by telephone and that a conference is tentatively planned for late next week, the day depending on when Taft will arrive in the capital.

Southern Democratic anger continued to boil, and Sen. Johnston, (D) S. C., announced that he will introduce an adjournment resolution the moment the Senate meets—"in honor," he said, "of Turnip Day in Missouri."

Being talked about by rank and file GOP senators today were these possibilities:

1. A quick plunge into a civil rights filibuster, which would be aimed at driving the wedge deeper in the Democratic Party split.

2. Action by the House on Senate-passed housing and aid to education measures, followed by filibuster-provoking bill and then by adjournment.

3. Prompt adjournment, accompanied by a defiant statement to the President, as one senator suggested privately, "that the Democrats have had 16 years to do these things and have not done them and we Republicans will do them our own way under a Republican President."

4. Recesses of three days at a time until after election — also suggested by the same senator, who said the Republicans might well pledge themselves that they will cooperate then with whichever presidential nominee wins.

DALLAS, Tex. — The Dallas police force is going into the moving picture business. And drunken drivers will be featured in every film. The Citizens Traffic Commission is setting up the equipment.

Sugar Beet Crop Lauded

The sugar beet is an important cash crop, according to University of Wisconsin. Years of extensive production prove that the crop blends in well with dairy farming, makes good use of farm manure and leaves the soil loose and friable.

Beets seldom are damaged by either late spring or early fall frosts. There are few crops that leave the soil in as good condition. The tops are valuable feed for cattle and sheep. They may be pastured, partially cured and put into trench silos, or used as silage.

Ahr Valley Water Shipment Arrives

NEW YORK.—Solution of a strange, war-born international tangle over the famous Apollinaris mineral springs in Germany's Ahr Valley came to light today with disclosure that the first postwar shipments of the famous mineral water have arrived in New York.

It took a series of diplomatic pourparleys and the combined efforts of three nations—Great Britain, France, and the United States—to deliver this first shipment of 500 cases.

The Apollinaris springs are in the French-occupied zone of Germany. According to the Potsdam agreement, France has the right to control the marketing of all natural resources from this region.

But the Apollinaris company itself has been a British company since long before the war. Hence, the matter became the subject of international negotiation and only recently was an agreement reached enabling the first shipment to proceed to these shores.

Arrangements for the shipment to the U. S. A.—the first export of Apollinaris water to any country since the war—were made by Austin, Nichols and Co., American importing firm.

The Apollinaris springs were first discovered in 1852 and after scientific study were declared to have therapeutic qualities of an alkaline nature. It has been used throughout the world as a table water and for mixed drinks.

Carolínians Lose Jim Crow Fight

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 17—South Carolina's "White Primary" Democrats smarted today under another federal court defeat of their efforts to bar Negroes from party membership.

Federal District Judge J. Waites Waring told the Democratic Party of the state here yesterday that it must allow Negroes to become party members and must give them full participation in party affairs.

Judge Waring granted a preliminary injunction assuring Negroes the right to party membership. The case was brought by David Brown, Beaufort Negro, who said he was denied membership because of race.

Italian Troops On Alert For Civil Strife

ROME, July 17—Troops and police guarding against possible civil war in Italy were held on the alert today while doctors fought to save the life of Communist Leader Palmiro Togliatti.

As penicillin was administered to the gravely wounded Togliatti, who now has been placed in an oxygen tent, anxiety developed that the condition of Togliatti might set off renewed disturbances and possible civil strife.

Togliatti was placed in an oxygen tent late last night after physicians injected large doses of penicillin to arrest the spread of bronchial pneumonia.

The penicillin came from the United States, the target of Togliatti's most bitter political attacks.

The government meanwhile kept troops and police alerted throughout Italy to block possible renewal of the civil strife which broke out when Togliatti was shot by an obscure Sicilian student Wednesday.

The precautions were maintained despite the fact that the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor called off its nationwide anti-government general strike when it became apparent that the walkout was not being supported by the mass of workers.

Notorious Thug Fatally Stabbed

NEW YORK, July 17—The body of Charles Yanowsky, 41, Alcatraz "graduate" and one of the nation's most notorious gangsters, lay in a New York Morgue today, mutilated by 12 stab wounds.

Yanowsky already had survived machinegun slugs with which FBI agents once riddled him.

The body was found in an isolated area near a school yard in Clifton, N. J. A diamond-studded belt buckle and expensive diamond ring were on the body, indicating robbery was not the motive.

Socialists Seek Spot On Ballot

COLUMBUS, July 17—A suit filed in Columbus federal district court by the Socialist Party posed another attempt today to place a minor political party on the November ballot.

The suit seeks interlocutory and permanent injunctions restraining Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel from enforcing certain Ohio election laws.

The Socialist Party claims abridgement of civil rights, questions the constitutionality of the laws and asks for a declaratory judgment.

It was the architect's opinion that all present walls in the building are supporting partitions and cannot be torn out. He declared no more room can be secured from the present building and that an addition was mandatory.

ANOTHER report was made by Dr. Blackburn concerning an inspection made of the Crawford County children's home in Galion.

Accompanying Dr. Blackburn were Mrs. Clarence McAbee, member of the welfare board; Lyman Penn, representative of the county commissioner; and Miss Jane Stewart, of the state department of welfare.

Dr. Blackburn said he found a great many things at the Crawford County institution which were needed here.

Among the things listed were ample toilets and bathing facilities, individual lockers for boys, reading rooms and a recreation room.

He reported that the interior of the building was spotless and in near perfect shape, although the outside of the building, which had formerly been a brewery, was ungainly.

Authorities at the institution told the visitors that the children had done most of the interior work, part of their training program being to teach the children the necessity of work to the home.

The committee also delved into the financial setup of the county, and found that $42,000 was appropriated there annually for various types of welfare work.

Dr. Blackburn said that the superintendent of the Crawford County home also is the executive secretary of the welfare board and that the county employs two fulltime case workers. A third is to be added to the staff soon.

IN ADDITION, Galion officials are planning to install a separate nursery to care for youngsters under six years of age.

Crawford County, according to information given Dr. Blackburn, provides care for 243 children, 59 in the county home, 55 in foster homes, 125 in their own homes and the balance scattered.

Before the conference got fully underway, Judge Sterling Lamb, Pickaway County probate and juvenile judge, made a formal statement that "as far as I am concerned, there is nothing political on the part of the welfare board or myself" concerning the better child care program.

'Little Steel' Is Expected To Hike Wages

PITTSBURGH, July 17—The first of the "Little Steel" companies to follow the example of "Big Steel" in granting third-round wage increases stepped forward today.

The Weirton Steel Co., Weirton, W. Va., gave its independent union raises averaging about nine percent, and said the same general increases will apply to all salaried workers. Weirton has 10,000 production workers.

United States Steel yesterday abandoned its "attempt to fight inflation" by awarding its 170,000 United Steelworkers wages averaging 13 cents an hour more, and at the same time announced that steel prices will be increased soon.

Other "Little Steel" operators are expected to follow, including Jones and Laughlin, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube Republic and others.

CIO and USW President Philip Murray announced the acceptance of the U. S. Steel offer in Pittsburgh yesterday. He hailed it as a complete victory for the steelworkers.

Buyers Finicky About Home Plans

NEW YORK.—The little white house on the hill may be somebody's "home sweet home," but home buyers don't want to pay postwar home prices for it unless it has a large living room, dinette instead of dining room, and more than one tiled bathroom.

That's the opinion of Herman O. Walther, former president of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers who has completed a study of postwar real estate trends.

Walther says: "Comfort comes first in 1948 home buying considerations. Americans now consider the home a machine for pleasant living, not just a place to sleep and eat."

According to Walther real estate appraisers find the following factors most heavily stressed in home buyers' demands:

Larger living rooms and elimination of the dining room; more than one bathroom, preferably tiled; in northern climates, a basement for storage and recreation space; Long narrow kitchens with plenty of cabinet space but no pantries; insulation and automatic heating; more and larger windows. Attached garage on street side of house and more electric outlets but less fixtures.

Walther summed up the report by saying:

"Now, as building begins to catch up to demand, it's becoming increasingly difficult to sell a house without some of these features."

'Ugly Duckling' To Get Surgery

CLEVELAND, July 17—John W. Glaefke, 31-year-old self-termed "ugly duckling," started today on what he hopes will be a new life.

Glaefke, placed on probation yesterday for five years on a burglary conviction, now will enter St. John's hospital here for plastic surgery.

Always friendless and jobless, Glaefke told Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Frank J. Merrick that he was rejected by society because of his ugliness.

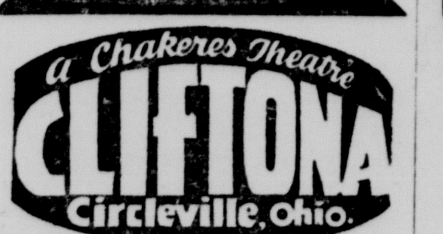

Surgeons will reshape his nose and a dentist will replace his "peg-shaped" teeth with a denture.

tion on the proposed all-Palestine truce.

Israeli troops, intent on chalking up last-minute victories before the cease-fire becomes effective, pressed their offensives in the Nazareth area in the north and at strategic Latrun, 15 miles west of Jerusalem.

Nazareth, the Biblical town in which Christ grew up, fell to Jewish soldiers last night. Israeli communiques said a large number of Arab troops were taken prisoner.

Capture of the town gives the Jews a firmer grip on the entire Northern Galilee region and virtually eliminates the Arab threat to the Jewish-held port of Haifa, 19 miles southeast of Nazareth.

Arab-held Latrun took a heavy pounding from Jewish artillery in the Bab El Ward area astride the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway. Israeli forces are attempting to blast the Arabs from a vital three-mile stretch of road.

Murder Count Readied In Cincy Slaying

CINCINNATI July 17—Harry Herbert Robertson, the 33-year-old Virginian who tossed an eight-year-old girl to her death from a Cincinnati viaduct yesterday, was officially accused of murder today.

Little Patricia Jackson died as the result of her 60-foot plunge into a railroad bed below.

Robertson said he was a former mental patient in an Illinois veterans' hospital and that "radioactivity did it."

Detective Chief Clem W. Merz said that a murder warrant filed by the girl's father would be acted upon today.

Witnesses said that Robertson scooped up the girl while she was tying a shoelace on the viaduct walk and threw the screaming youngster over the side. She died before reaching the hospital.

The six-foot-four Virginian was chasing Patricia's three-year-old brother and a young neighbor girl when caught by two passersby.

Robertson told police that "voices keep telling me I am yellow" but said he did not feel any braver after his act and that he still heard the voices.

Truman Set To Ask Plan On Inflation

for mere living but for powers to roll back some of the more important areas of today's extremely high prices.

Coupled with this, the President will ask for authority to ration commodities that are basic in the nation's industrial economy, such as steel, and which now still remain in extremely high demand and short supply.

The President also is expected to ask for authority to allocate basic materials.

The President's main worry now on high prices, however, is the fact that the prices of food have increased so alarmingly and so steadily over the past six months, despite the fact that now government forecasts are for the greatest crops in the nation's history.

MEANWHILE, Republican leaders in Congress tentatively scheduled a meeting for late next week to map their strategy for the special session.

They were hampered, however, by the inability to locate Senate GOP Policy Chairman Taft of Ohio, who was motoring toward his Murray Bay, Quebec, summer home and apparently keeping away from telephones.

It was learned, however, that other congressional leaders were in touch with one another by telephone and that a conference is tentatively planned for late next week, the day depending on when Taft will arrive in the capital.

Southern Democratic anger continued to boil, and Sen. Johnston, (D) S. C., announced that he will introduce an adjournment resolution the moment the Senate meets—"in honor," he said, "of Turnip Day in Missouri."

Being talked about by rank and file GOP senators today were these possibilities:

1. A quick plunge into a civil rights filibuster, which would be aimed at driving the wedge deeper in the Democratic Party split.

2. Action by the House on Senate-passed housing and aid to education measures, followed by filibuster-provoking bill and then by adjournment.

3. Prompt adjournment, accompanied by a defiant statement to the President, as one senator suggested privately, "that the Democrats have had 16 years to do these things and have not done them and we Republicans will do them our own way under a Republican President."

4. Recesses of three days at a time until after election—also suggested by the same senator, who said the Republicans might well pledge themselves that they will cooperate then with whichever presidential nominee wins.

DALLAS, Tex.—The Dallas police force is going into the moving picture business. And drunken drivers will be featured in every film. The Citizens Traffic Commission is setting up the equipment.

Nutrition Cuts Swine Diarrhea

Proper nutrition plays an important role in control of swine diarrhea and scours, a source of considerable loss to most pork producers, according to Wise Burroughs of the Ohio station. Nursing pigs are susceptible to the disease, feeder pigs get enteritis and even older animals sometimes scour.

Deficiencies in any one of five different B-vitamins may cause diarrhea, Burroughs warns.

Sugar Beet Crop Laued

The sugar beet is an important cash crop, according to University of Wisconsin. Years of extensive production prove that the crop blends in well with dairy farming, makes good use of farm manure and leaves the soil loose and friable.

Beets seldom are damaged by either late spring or early fall frosts. There are few crops that leave the soil in as good condition. The tops are valuable feed for cattle and sheep. They may be pastured, partially cured and put into trench silos, or used as silage.

Ahr Valley Water Shipment Arrives

NEW YORK.—Solution of a strange, war-born international tangle over the famous Apollinaris mineral springs in Germany's Ahr Valley came to light today with disclosure that the first postwar shipments of the famous mineral water have arrived in New York.

It took a series of diplomatic pourparleys and the combined efforts of three nations—Great Britain, France, and the United States—to deliver this first shipment of 500 cases.

The Apollinaris springs are in the French-occupied zone of Germany. According to the Potsdam agreement, France has the right to control the marketing of all natural resources from this region.

But the Apollinaris company itself has been a British company since long before the war. Hence, the matter became the subject of international negotiation and only recently was an agreement reached enabling the first shipment to proceed to these shores.

Arrangements for the shipment to the U. S. A.—the first export of Apollinaris water to any country since the war—were made by Austin, Nichols and Co., American importing firm.

The Apollinaris springs were first discovered in 1852 and after scientific study were declared to have therapeutic qualities of an alkaline nature. It has been used throughout the world as a table water and for mixed drinks.

Carolínians Lose Jim Crow Fight

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 17—South Carolina's "White Primary" Democrats smarted today under another federal court defeat of their efforts to bar Negroes from party membership.

Federal District Judge J. Walter Waring told the Democratic Party of the state here yesterday that it must allow Negroes to become party members and must give them full participation in party affairs.

Judge Waring granted a preliminary injunction assuring Negroes the right to party membership. The case was brought by David Brown, Beaufort Negro, who said he was denied membership because of race.

Italian Troops On Alert For Civil Strife

ROME, July 17—Troops and police guarding against possible civil war in Italy were held on the alert today while doctors fought to save the life of Communist Leader Palmiro Togliatti.

As penicillin was administered to the gravely wounded Togliatti, who now has been placed in an oxygen tent, anxiety developed that the condition of Togliatti might set off renewed disturbances and possible civil strife.

Togliatti was placed in an oxygen tent late night after physicians injected large doses of penicillin to arrest the spread of bronchial pneumonia.

The penicillin came from the United States, the target of Togliatti's most bitter political attacks.

The government meanwhile kept troops and police alerted throughout Italy to block possible renewal of the civil strife which broke out when Togliatti was shot by an obscure Sicilian student Wednesday.

The precautions were maintained despite the fact that the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor called off its nationwide anti-government general strike when it became apparent that the walkout was not being supported by the mass of workers.

Notorious Thug Fatally Stabbed

NEW YORK, July 17—The body of Charles Yanowsky, 41, Alcatraz "graduate" and one of the nation's most notorious gangsters, lay in a New York Morgue today, mutilated by 12 stab wounds.

Yanowsky already had survived machinegun slugs with which FBI agents once riddled him.

The body was found in an isolated area near a school yard in Clifton, N. J. A diamond studded belt buckle and expensive diamond ring were on the body, indicating robbery was not the motive.

Socialists Seek Spot On Ballot

COLUMBUS, July 17—A suit filed in Columbus federal district court by the Socialist Party posed another attempt today to place a minor political party on the November ballot.

The suit seeks interlocutory and permanent injunctions restraining Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel from enforcing certain Ohio election laws.

The Socialist Party claims abridgement of civil rights, questions the constitutionality of the laws and asks for a declaratory judgment.

'Ugly Duckling' To Get Surgery

CLEVELAND, July 17—John W. Glaefke, 31-year-old self-term "ugly duckling," started today on what he hopes will be a new life.

Glaefke, placed on probation yesterday for five years on a burglary conviction, now will enter St. John's hospital here for plastic surgery.

Always friendless and jobless; Glaefke told Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Frank J. Merrick that he was rejected by society because of his ugliness.

Surgeons will reshape his nose and a dentist will replace his "peg-shaped" teeth with a denture.

Food Train To Assemble On Aug. 26

The first Ohio Food train will be assembled Aug. 26 and a second train is planned for mid-October, it was announced Saturday by Carl J. Landes, state director for the Christian Rural Overseas program (CROP), sponsor of the trains.

Landes explained that instead of one giant train, 12 sections will be formed on Aug. 26. These various sections, containing from half a dozen to a score of cars, will move independently to the port of embarkation in Philadelphia.

A second train is planned for farm products which are out of season at the present, Landes explained.

Concentration points for cars intended for the first food train were given by Landes as: Athens, Bellefontaine, Cambridge, Columbus, Fostoria, Lima, Mansfield, Massillon, Troy, Warren, Washington C. H., and Wauseon.

Appropriate ceremonies will be held at each of these concentration points on Aug. 26, Landes said. He predicted, however, that ceremonies would be held in advance of this date as local communities filled individual cars.

The present campaign is principally for wheat and dairy products. The whole wheat will be shipped overseas, so as to provide both relief and employment. Milk will be dried in preparation for shipping.

Among counties already reporting wheat quotas for the Aug. 26 train are Paulding (quota 6 cars) and Warren (quota 4 cars).

Countywide campaigns will be conducted throughout the remainder of the month.

Scripture—Ruth

There being a famine in the land of Israel, a man named Elimelech took his wife, Naomi, and his two sons to Moab, where there was food.

The sons grew up and married Moabite women; then Naomi's husband died and also her two sons, leaving the three women widows and childless.

Naomi, probably homesick for her own land, decided to go back to her home town of Bethlehem, and Ruth, her daughter-in-law begged to go with her.

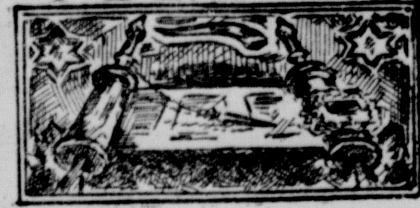

Ruth eventually married a relative of Naomi's, and when Ruth's child was born, Naomi held him in her arms. MEMORY VERSE—Ephesians 4:32

UNHAPPY MISERS

THERE are always stories of misers dying in apparent poverty amid hoarded riches, but in the last few years there seem to have been more of them, accompanied by more spectacular circumstances than the usual such tale discloses.

The Collier brothers of New York City were an example. Their house was crammed with clothing, bank books and all manner of junk, and among the lot were seven grand pianos.

Two more recent cases, one in Wisconsin and one in New Jersey, show the same type of morbid mind. In the first, two persons were found ill and freezing in a home "the scene of unbelievable filth, piled with hundreds of yards of new dry goods, old rags, new and old shoes, battered hats and yellowed newspapers. Cooking was done over a kerosene stove with blackened utensils, the sink was a basin on a board, water was furnished by a hand pump, lanterns gave illumination, burlap bags covered the windows." The couple had cash and real estate.

In the other case a woman died alone, with $4,000 in cash in the house, bank books with a balance over $14,000. Much of the cash was in pay envelopes earned by the woman years ago in a silk mill. Women will be interested in the fact that there were 75 new bed sheets and quantities of unused silk hose.

What makes people do these things? What queer fear of poverty dogs their days and nights? What deep sense of personal inadequacy to earn a living fogs their unhappy minds?

How pleasant a thing is normal life — where the husband earns money and the wife earns home comfort and together they raise a family of normal children who in turn look forward to productive work by day, to pleasant evenings and the sense of accomplishment that comes with work and companionship, life, love and laughter!

RELIEVING SIEGE BY AIR

ANNE O'Hare McCormick of the New York Times says the situation in Berlin cannot last as it is—it will have to evolve in some direction. This is doubtless true. Americans hope we can keep it up on our side until Russia gets tired of the situation and of the obloquy she is getting by it.

It is troublesome and expensive for the three other powers to ferry in by air the food and materials needed. But it must be an impressive sight for Russia. She can see from that cloud of peaceful, food-ferrying planes what the other three powers can do if they have to. We trust the lesson is not lost in important quarters.

Well, the Egyptians, the Greeks, the Arabs, the Romans and the Huns have had their turn, and now must everything begin all over again?

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's

The differences in personality between Harry Truman and Tom Dewey will appear fully during the campaign. Both, it is true, were born in small towns; both are wedded to family life; both lack that physical stature, that public manner, that startling voice that Hollywood and the radio have made so popular in American politics. Both are unquestionably honest men. Both are lovers of music.

But there the similarities cease. Truman is neither by education nor training prepared for the tremendous tasks which political fortune has thrust upon him and which he now assumes voluntarily. Dewey has spent all his mature years preparing himself for the presidency. Truman fears men of superior qualities. Although at first he turned to Herbert Hoover, Bernard Baruch, James Byrnes and other experienced citizens for support, he has since surrounded himself with inferior persons, cronies of Missouri or his early Washington days, flatterers and fawners but not men of administrative ability or political prescience.

Dewey built a team of extraordinarily competent men who have been with him since he entered upon a public career. Curiously, an unusually large number of them are around 46 years old, as is Dewey himself. Some of them were raw material when they cast their lot in the Dewey career; they have been hammered by experience into a competent administrative force which can work together. There are no private quarrels, no empire building, no back-biting or back-scratching in this team, whose success is the result of learning to work together over a prolonged period.

Whereas Truman has had to slap down his assistants publicly and whereas they fight each other in public, the Dewey team does not consist of robots. They sit with the governor in council where everything is put on the table, every difference of opinion, every criticism, every gripe. As these men have been with him throughout his career, from racket-busting up, they are used to each other and are intimate and they speak frankly—but they do not bicker. Decisions are made by the team and once made are carried through.

It is this administrative skill which gives Dewey his competence. For he is not all-knowing, all-wise. And that he is willing to admit. That is why he emphasizes teamwork and why he got along so swimmingly with the New York legislature. A man who recognizes his limitations and has the wisdom to compensate for them is a great administrator. For most of the bottlenecks in business as in government are at the top where often sits a boss who ties important problems into knots because he is incapable of handling them and he will not delegate authority to a big enough man—out of fear or jealousy.

Harry Truman failed just for that reason. A decent, honest, well-meaning man, he lacks the knowledge for his job and the administrative skill to compensate for his limitations by organizing a top-notch team. He cannot use big enough men.

More people were at work in the United States in June than ever before—61,296,000 of 'em. Then how come the park was so crowded?

Sooner or later another President such as has been known in our finest times will appear again in this country. Nothing is more greatly needed now.

Wonder if the Moscovites, reading about the big political conventions, think there's a rift on our side of the Iron Curtain?

A Reaction Due to Allergy

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MENIERE'S disease is one of the strangest of the many disorders now thought also to be due to allergic reactions.

People afflicted in this way are apparently well unless they eat some food or come in contact with something to which they are allergic and then a most unpleasant episode ensues. The first reaction is likely to be extreme dizziness and impairment of the hearing in one ear, the sounds of the outside world being replaced by a persistent and annoying ringing in the affected ear. During an attack, the patient grows pale and often suffers from cold sweats, sickness at the stomach, and vomiting.

Unpleasant Symptoms
The exact reason why an allergy should take this form in some people is yet to be found, but the unpleasant symptoms can be accounted for by the fact that the reaction brought about by the allergy involves the blood vessels supplying the ear, which is not only the organ of hearing but also houses the body's balancing mechanism.

A number of different forms of treatment have been employed. One of the most recent consists of the use of histamine diphosphate. When persons are allergic, histamine is formed in excessive amounts in the body. Hence the object of this treatment is to make the patient less sensitive to histamine.

In employing the treatment, the histamine diphosphate is given slowly at the rate of 40 to 60 drops a minute by injection into a vein. The histamine diphosphate is dissolved in about a half pint of salt solution.

The treatment is given daily for ten days. At the end of this time, if no improvement is noted, the process is repeated for another 10-day period. Then, the preparation is given by injection under the skin, starting with a small dose which is gradually increased until some discomfort is produced. Reactions may consist of flushing of the face and a feeling of heat.

More than a hundred patients were treated in this way, and about three-fourths of them were completely relieved of the ringing in the ear, while the remainder had marked improvement. The hearing was improved in nine out of ten cases, and the dizziness relieved in about the same number.

In older patients, who had signs of deficiency in vitamin B-complex as shown by redness of the tongue and lining membrane of the cheek, the vitamin B-complex was given by injection into a vein three times a week. Later on it was given by mouth.

Of course, treatment of this type must be carefully carried out under the direction of the physician who will determine in just what cases it may prove of value.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. C.: What is the cause of a basal metabolism reading of 24 minus?
Answer: The exact cause of the low metabolic rate cannot be stated. It may be due to a thyroid deficiency.

Treatment with thyroid extract would probably be helpful. It is suggested that you consult your physician concerning the proper dose to be used.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

ANDREW sighed. He felt distinctly inadequate in his present role, but he had to try to straighten out Carol's ideas if he could. He said slowly, "Everybody makes his own technique, I suppose. But I do know that for most people happiness comes when they have an occupation they enjoy, and when they can forget themselves for most of the time by thinking of others."

Carol tossed her head. "Aunt Millie loves housework, and she spends all her time fussing over me and Grandfather. . . . But she's not happy."

"I rather imagine that's because you're a worry to her," Andrew said drily.

"Besides," Carol's voice quavered a little, "I don't know what I want to do."

"How about gardening?" Eph's voice rumbled beside her, and she looked at him, startled.

"I hate it! I don't like getting my hands in the dirt. That's funny, too," she admitted, "because I never mind getting them greasy or dirty when I work on my bike or the car."

"Must have a mechanical streak," Eph said. "How'd you like to come down to the filling station and help me out mornings? Couldn't pay you much, but you could learn a lot."

Carol was pleased. "I'd like that, I think," she said. "That is, if Grampa will let me."

It was obvious that her grandfather would let her do anything she wanted if it would keep her out of mischief. He had just come in from his fruitless search when they drove up to the Wheeler house. Millie Sayre came running to the door when she saw their headlights, and caught up Carol with a wordless cry.

"You're wet," she said, then, "How did that happen?"

Andrew said quickly, "I was bringing her a drink of water, and—oh—I tripped and splashed it on her."

"Oh, I do hope you haven't caught cold. Go up and take a warm bath, dear, and get right into bed." Millie turned grateful eyes on the two embarrassed men, and Ogden Sayre, his face sagged and grey-looking with worry and fatigue, said,

"I'll never in this world be able to thank you two. . . . Where was she?"

"Up in the hills, with Ralph at his shack. But the important thing to remember is that she was all right," Andrew said. "Well, we'll be running along."

The trip back to town was slow. Andrew felt drained, now that the excitement was over. Besides, he could not help but wonder how long the change in Carol would last. If she had a weak streak from her mother—

"Well, I sure enjoyed riding in this car," Eph said mildly, getting out at his house, when Andrew stopped. "I wouldn't worry none about that Carol either," he added.

"It's been my observation that the burnt child gets the most grease. But that's the way it is in this world."

His words brought another memory to Andrew's mind, and he laughed suddenly. He saw Eph standing over the prostrate figure of Ralph. "I thought you said you couldn't fight," he chuckled now.

"I thought you said you were as meek as butter. Pretty strong butter, if you ask me!"

Eph sighed. "You suggestin' I should eat my words?" he inquired sadly. "Heck, I been doing that all my life. That's why I'm so fat!"

Andrew had no trouble finding men to make the excavation for his house, but when it came to masons and carpenters, he was not so fortunate. All the best men in those lines were already working for Baron on his development project, and this time Andrew had no legitimate excuse to get any of them away from the contractor.

While said, seeing him on the cleared piece of land where Andrew's first house was to rise, "I'd rather be working for you, Mr. Paulson, but you see how it is." And Andrew did see, that was the trouble.

In the meantime, the gondolas arrived with the lumber from the shipyard. It was splendidly weathered wood. He clambered over the freight cars, examining it, measuring it, estimating what he could get out of it, and was extraordinarily pleased with what he saw. The ends where the bolts had been would have to be sawed off, but for the most part he had something any builder might well envy him.

Mrs. Potts said, "I hear you've got some prime wood, Andy." And Andy handed him as he went by one morning. "Everybody in town is talking about your clever move, son. Seems you had a real inspiration."

"Is the living room wainscoting looking yet?" Andrew asked with a grin. But he was more than a little anxious, too.

"Not yet and when it does, I'll remember I've no call for complaint," the older man said.

Everyone, it seemed, knew of his lumber pile on the siding, and he discovered again that the New England appreciation of a true bargain was always present in these people. He was beginning to feel the same way himself. But not entirely.

When Mrs. Potts, less disturbed this time, handed him another yellow envelope one hot July noon, he learned how much he had changed in these past few months. It was a message from Bigelow again. It read:

"Am sending this for Jessup, rather than give your address. He is supervising the reconstruction of the old house into a sanitarium for tubercular patients, as per Mr. Delacourt's will." (Andrew was amused how cleverly Bigelow had said this so that the telegraph operator at Brandfield would not get the connection.) "The charity concerned is anxious to have you as architect for the job. This would be an excellent opportunity, and would pay well. Please advise . . . Bigelow."

Andrew could see the hand of old Mr. Hadley in this. And Jessup's too. Both of them had been so distressed by the terms of his grandfather's will, and no doubt both had used their influence to make him the opportunity. Yet he did not feel that they had gone beyond their province, for he knew that no one could do that particular job better than he. Nor did he feel any sorrow at the thought of turning the handsome mansion into something as impersonal as a sanitarium. There had been only a few rooms which had had any sentimental value for him.

He put the yellow message back into its envelope, thrust the envelope into his coat pocket with a thoughtful air. Mrs. Potts watched him anxiously. "Mr. Bigelow isn't sick, is he?" she asked, unable to contain her curiosity any longer.

"No," Andrew answered without thinking, "he wants me to come down to New Jersey for a big job."

Mrs. Potts was indignant. "What does he want to do that for? Doesn't he know you belong in Brandfield now? The idea! Why, Andy, you wouldn't leave your development, and Joan, and all of us, to go down there, would you?"

She was so upset at the mere thought, that he hastened to reassure her. But she sensed that his heart wasn't in it; she realized that he was only talking. And Andrew, although he didn't really intend to go, could not help playing with the idea for a few hours. It would mean a good fat fee . . . It would mean that he could certainly afford to get married, and he wouldn't have to be away too long. . . . He did always come back to Brandfield after the job was done.

He ended by dropping in at the Brandfield Lumber Supply Company that afternoon. Alec was in the outer office, talking to Joan, and greeted him with some excitement when he appeared. "Hi! I was just going to call you. Got good news for you. . . . Joan, where's that manifest?" He beamed on Andrew through his glasses. "We got in some good siding material this afternoon, and were apportioning it to our pet customers. You can have enough for your house, Andy."

Andrew was pleased. "Fine," he said. "That means that I can use the plywood cases for interior finishing—all kinds of items that I didn't dare include in my first plans because I didn't know where I'd get the stuff to build them with. . . . How's that roofing coming, by the way?"

"It will be here in time," Alec said as he hurried out toward the mill.

Dewey Vs. Taft—Again Will Ohioan Fall in Line? | Steel Producers Now Talk Another Climb in Prices

WASHINGTON—It will be interesting to see whether Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft will be able to fall in line with the policies of the man who defeated him for the Republican presidential nomination and become Tom Dewey's majority leader in the Senate—if Dewey is elected.

As of now, Taft doesn't want that post. It would involve going all out for the administration program. However, Taft must give up his all-powerful Senate GOP policy committee chairmanship this year, following custom.

This would leave him only the chairmanship of the GOP conference—a relatively unimportant post. Or he could devote his major interest to his present leadership of the joint congressional economic committee. Through this job he could wield a heavy hand on domestic legislation.

The economic committee job promises the Ohio senator his most weighty lever on Dewey. Through it he could voice his opinions on the high cost of living, government economy, taxes, housing and other key domestic issues which could "make" a president in 1952.

If Taft should change his mind, and go for the majority leadership spot—vacant through retirement of Senator Wallace H. White (R), Maine—he would have a fight on his hands. Senator Kenneth Wherry (R), Nebraska, who acted as majority kingpin through most of the 80th Congress, like the job, means to keep it, and won't step down peaceably simply to maintain harmony in Republican Senate ranks.

Steel Producers Now Talk Another Climb in Prices
The nation's steel producers are taking up another price boost—to be passed along to the consumer on the theory that he won't kick.

As usual, first increases will be announced by United States Steel and followed by the rest of the industry, which is 100 per cent sold on the belief that consumers are primarily interested in supply and devil take the price.

The steelmen base their conviction on:
1—The gray market, where steel-needy consumers have dabbled, despite the doubled and trebled prices.
2—Outright purchases by large consumers of whole steel plants, at high prices, to meet their requirements.
The industry will point to increasing costs of steel production as prime factor causing price increases. It has two good arguments: higher price of coal and taller railroad freight charges.

A LEAF CURLED FROM THE ATTACKS OF CURRANT APHIDS

SWELLING ON RASPBERRY CANE CAUSED BY BORER

First Aid for Small Fruits

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

CURRENTS, raspberries, gooseberries and other small fruits require protection from insect pests that seem to like them just as much as does the gardener who grows them.

Keep an eye out for the currant aphid. It attacks both currants and gooseberries. A leaf curled from the attacks of these aphids is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

These greenish-yellow, flat-bodied aphids are found on the undersides of the curled leaves. As result of the attacks of the aphids the leaf surface becomes bright red in color.

Best control of aphids consist of thoroughly spraying the undersides of the leaves with a nicotine or rotenone solution. Make sure the spray also gets into the cup-like depressions, illustrated, which are caused by the feeding of the aphids.

Keep alert for an invasion of cane-borers among raspberry, blackberry and dewberry plants. These borers are considered one of the most serious insect pests of these bush fruits.

The larvae of the cane-borer causes swellings of the canes, as illustrated. As result of this attack, the cane dies or breaks off at the point where the swelling occurs.

To control the borers, cut out any infested canes, also any tops which seem to be withering or drooping. Make the cut somewhat below the point at which the injury occurs. Burn the cuttings, for the eggs or larvae of the borer will be in the cut-off sections of the cane.

Household Hints

When you peel a quantity of fruits or vegetables for canning, or even for a good-sized dinner, wind a piece of adhesive tape around the thumb that will be exposed to the knife blade or friction.

If vinegar or lemon are to be added to green vegetables, they should be mixed in after the vegetable is cooked. If they are not, they will turn the green color of the vegetable a drab olive.

Baking powder biscuits may be made and prepared for the oven several hours before needed. Put the dough into the refrigerator until ready to bake.

Cakes bake faster in glass pans than in metal ones, so therefore should be baked at a slightly lower temperature or a shorter time.

A good gravy for your summer fried chicken is a 10½ oz. can of condensed cream of mushroom soup emptied into the pan after the chicken is cooked. Mix with drippings, heat with ¼ cup of milk, and add chopped giblets.

For cocktail service make very small New England cod fish balls. Re-heat in the oven. Serve on a toothpick with a pearl pickled onion on top.

To keep the bottom crust of a pie dry, remove it immediately from the baking pan and cool it on a metal rack.

When seasoning hot buttered vegetables for the table, squeeze the juice from half a lemon over them. The flavor of green string beans, spinach, broccoli and asparagus is especially improved by this treatment.

Too much beating after flour has been added causes large holes and tunnels in cakes.

In preparing tomato dishes, try adding a pinch of basil to improve the flavor.

Familiarize yourself with your washing machine to get the best service from it. Be sure it is installed on proper current. Stand on a dry floor, connect plug with dry hands. Keep drains clear and surfaces clean and dry. Read the manufacturer's directions carefully and follow them, especially as to the capacity of the machine. An overload strains the motor and may blow a fuse. Watch that nuts and bolts do not become loose. If moving parts do not have sealed lubrication, they should be kept properly oiled. Keep rubber parts dry and free

First Aid for Small Fruits

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

CURRENTS, raspberries, gooseberries and other small fruits require protection from insect pests that seem to like them just as much as does the gardener who grows them.

Keep an eye out for the currant aphid. It attacks both currants and gooseberries. A leaf curled from the attacks of these aphids is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

These greenish-yellow, flat-bodied aphids are found on the undersides of the curled leaves. As result of the attacks of the aphids the leaf surface becomes bright red in color.

Best control of aphids consist of thoroughly spraying the undersides of the leaves with a nicotine or rotenone solution. Make sure the spray also gets into the

Ghezzi Holding 5-Stroke Lead In Pency Meet

PITTSBURGH, July 17—Vic Ghezzi of Englewood, N. J., with a 12-under-par 132, is definitely the man to catch today as the $16,500 Dapper Dan golf tournament entered its third round here.

Big Vic yesterday equalled the Alamo course record of 66 which he set himself Thursday, and gained a 5-stroke edge over his nearest rival, Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Cal.

Demaret has played steady golf. The California crooner followed an opening day 69 with a 68 yesterday. Ed Furgol, of Pontiac, Mich., is in third place with a two-day card of 139.

Bunched four strokes back of Furgol, and 12 behind Ghezzi, at 142, are Toby Lyons, Warren, Pa.; Herman Keiser, Akron; Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, and George Schoux, Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Mangrum needs to finish in the first four of the Dapper Dan event to pass the idle Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., as the leading money winner of the year. Hogan has earned more than $20,000 with his golf clubs this year, and Mangrum better than $19,000.

Canton Plagued By Garbage Case

CANTON, July 17—The Canton Hog Ranch Co., continued today to handle Canton garbage disposal on a day-to-day basis.

The city and the hog ranch reached a temporary agreement late yesterday after a Stark County common pleas court order halted burial of garbage on the 600-acre city tract south of Canton.

The city was prevented from using the tract by a temporary order issued by Judge George N. Graham. The restraining petition was filed by Willard E. Heinrich, who lives on property adjoining the proposed disposal site.

Feller Fails To Impress Mad Macks

Not-So-Rapid Robert Is Flop

CLEVELAND, July 17—Bob Feller used to be called the fireball king, the Cleveland ace, or the greatest right-hander in baseball.

But they reserve those superlatives for other hurlers today, and never was the reason more apparent.

In a normal season, all Feller had to do to whip the Philadelphia A's was to toss his glove onto the field. He lasted less than an inning last night as the A's pounded out a 10-5 victory to cut Cleveland's American League lead to a game and a half.

Feller faced six men, retired but one, and was charged with five runs. That was all for Feller.

At that, he might have got out of the first with only three runs charged against him, but an error by Joe Gordon, and a couple of fielding blunders by Feller himself and Ken Keltner added to his woes.

Feller's season record now stands at nine won and 11 lost, and unless a miracle happens, the not-so-rapid Robert is headed for his worst year in the majors.

THE A'S DIDN'T stop their pounding when Feller left the mound, and it was a good thing for them. They got three more off Bob Muncie in the second and added one in each the fourth and fifth frames to sew up the win.

Another error in the second counted for two of the A's markers. The score was 9-1 before the Tribesmen finally went to work. They added four more in the sixth—but not enough to win, however.

The Indians had men on base in each of the last three innings, but failed to capitalize on their scoring opportunities.

Sam Zoldak was to hurl for Cleveland today against the A's. Joe Coleman was to be Connie Mack's choice.

Following today's battle the Tribe was to move into Washington for a series with the Nats. Leroy "Satchel" Paige and Gene Bearden were named Cleveland's probable starters for tomorrow's doubleheader in the Nation's Capital.

ABOARD THE SS AMERICA, July 17—Oceanic training difficulties became a major problem today for representatives of the United States track and field team who are trying to keep in shape for the Olympic games.

Crowded conditions on the ship forced the athletes to work out under somewhat fantastic conditions.

For instance, the hammer throwers had to get up before sunrise this morning to strut their stuff as a precaution against injuring spectators.

The American trio of Bob Bennett, Henry Dreyer and Sam Felton were out on the fantail practicing hammer turns before the crack of dawn, when nobody was around to get their heads conked.

Dan Ferris, major domo of the American squad, announced the scheduling of pre-Olympic competition for American trackmen and basketball players.

The highlight of the program is the traditional 16-event meet with the British empire at White City stadium on Aug. 12, while the games still are in progress.

Indians Show Gain; Red Birds Take Twin Bill

By International News Service Indianapolis picked up a half game today in its whisker-close American Association pennant fight with Milwaukee, but it took two Tribal victories last night to turn the trick.

The Indians defeated Kansas City, 5 to 3 and 3 to 0. Cal McLish allowed seven hits in the second game shutout after Johnny Hutchings had turned in some brilliant relief hurling in the first contest. He relieved Edson Bahr in the second inning.

Milwaukee's Brewers, who had a 12-game winning streak snapped Thursday, came back last night with a 4-to-1 triumph over Toledo. Norm Roy held the Mud Hens to five hits.

The Brewers now trail the leading Indians by a game and a half. Columbus took a double header from Minneapolis, 9 to 5 and 14 to 10. An eight-run sixth inning put the second game on ice despite homer uns by Babe Barna and Bobby Rhawn of the Millers.

Louisville and St. Paul split a twin bill. The Colonels pushed over a last-inning tally to win the first game, 5 to 4. St. Paul came back to win the second as Phil Haugstad scattered six hits for a 9-to-0 shutout.

Dr. Stanton Due For Illini Pace

CHICAGO, July 17—Dr. Stanton, the 7-year-old Cinderella horse, will try to regain his winning stride tonight in the 15,000 Illini Pace, the feature of Maywood Park's harness racing program.

The gelding owned by Lindy Faser of Forest, Ont., was defeated by Jimmy Creed in both divisions of the $10,000 Chicago Derby last week. The Canadian horse broke gait in the mile section of the derby and finished second in the 1-16 of a mile event. Jimmy Creed set two new marks in whipping Dr. Stanton.

In tonight's pace Dr. Stanton's rivals will be Brucita's Guy, Royal Man, Dale McKlyo, Guest Star, Valdo Abbe, Noble F and Red McKlyo.

At that, he might have got out of the first with only three runs charged against him, but an error by Joe Gordon, and a couple of fielding blunders by Feller himself and Ken Keltner added to his woes.

Feller's season record now stands at nine won and 11 lost, and unless a miracle happens, the not-so-rapid Robert is headed for his worst year in the majors.

THE A'S DIDN'T stop their pounding when Feller left the mound, and it was a good thing for them. They got three more off Bob Muncie in the second and added one in each the fourth and fifth frames to sew up the win.

Another error in the second counted for two of the A's markers.

The score was 9-1 before the Tribesmen finally went to work.

They added four more in the sixth—but not enough to win, however.

The Indians had men on base in each of the last three innings, but failed to capitalize on their scoring opportunities.

Sam Zidak was to hurl for Cleveland today against the A's. Joe Coleman was to be Connie Mack's choice.

Following today's battle the Tribe was to move into Washington for a series with the Nats. Leroy "Satchel" Paige and Gene Bearden were named Cleveland's probable starters for tomorrow's doubleheader in the Nation's Capital.

Training At Sea Difficult For Olympic Teams

ABOARD THE SS AMERICA, July 17—Oceanic training difficulties became a major problem today for representatives of the United States track and field team who are trying to keep in shape for the Olympic games.

Crowded conditions on the ship forced the athletes to work out under somewhat fantastic conditions.

For instance, the hammer throwers had to get up before sunrise this morning to strut their stuff as a precaution against injuring spectators.

The American trio of Bob Bennett, Henry Dreyer and Sam Felton were out on the fantail practicing hammer turns before the crack of dawn, when nobody was around to get their heads conked.

Dan Ferris, major domo of the American squad, announced the scheduling of pre-Olympic competition for American trackmen and basketball players.

The highlight of the program is the traditional 16-event meet with the British empire at White City stadium on Aug. 12, while the games still are in progress.

McCarthy Goes To Golf Finals

DAYTON, July 17—It was Maurice J. McCarthy, of Cincinnati, against Harold Paddock, of Cleveland, today in the finals of the 42nd Annual Ohio amateur golf championship.

McCarthy and Paddock gained the finals over the Miami Valley Country Club course here with 2 and 1 wins over semi-final opponents.

Peggy Kirk Still Champ

COLUMBUS, July 17—Twenty-six-year-old Peggy Kirk still was in possession of her women's state golf championship today.

The Findlay golfer defeated Carol Dinger of Tiffin in the final over the Columbus Country Club course yesterday by an impressive 11 and 9 edge.

Peggy really won the 36-hole final match in the morning eighteen. She took a nine-stroke advantage, mainly by winning six holes on the back nine.

Leo Knew On July 4th He Was To Get The Sack

By BILL CORUM
NEW YORK, July 17—On Sunday evening, July 4th, the writer drove out to Long Beach for dinner. Coming home around one a. m., he found a telephone message that read:
"At whatever hour you come in, call Leo Durocher at this number."
I called and Durocher said he must see me at once on a matter of vital importance.
"I have to have some advice," he said, "and want to talk to you right away."
Asked if he had gone to bed, he said he had.
"How about tomorrow morning?" I asked him.
After a moment's hesitation, he replied: "So far as I know now I'm supposed to catch a nine o'clock train for a double-header in Philadelphia. It's a helluva time to ask a fellow to get up so you can tell him your troubles, but could I see you at seven?"

SO WE AGREED that he should meet me in my room at the Park Lane hotel at that time. I left a call for seven and he was at the door by the time I'd ordered toast and coffee and hung up the phone.
That was when I found out that on the previous afternoon during the game with the Giants at Ebbets Field, Secretary Harold Parrott of the Dodgers had come to Durocher in his office in the Brooklyn dressing room and said:
"I hate to tell you this, Leo, but the boss (Branch Rickey) wants you to resign." Durocher was in the clubhouse because he had been chased by an umpire.
But before we go any further with that, let me point out again that Durocher wasn't coming to me with the idea of giving me the story.
What he wanted was to seek advice on what to say, if anything, to the press when the story broke.
There was no doubt in his mind that it was only a matter of days, maybe hours, until he would be ousted. In fact, he half expected to find that news waiting for him when he reached Shibe Park.
So it was thoughtful, and typical of the few contacts of this kind that the writer has had with him, for him to say:
"THE THINGS that I am going to tell you are not in confidence. You use your own judgment. Write any part of this today, or whenever you like."

Durocher Expected To Fit Well In McGraw's Old Giant Shoes

By LAWTON CARVER
NEW YORK, July 17—For the first time since 1932, the New York Giants finally have a manager who is gauged to run the club in the pattern set for it by John McGraw. Leo Durocher is by every thought and gesture a Broadway wise guy. So was McGraw.
When Bill Terry was hand-picked by McGraw as his successor in the 1932 season the PHILADELPHIA, July 17—Philadelphia baseball fans forgot their pennant fever over the Amazing Athletics temporarily today and clamored for the reason Ben Chapman was dismissed suddenly as manager of the Phillies.

It was Chapman's fight and fire field that sparked the National League club from the bottom of the ladder to which it had been accustomed, and under his reign the club earned the title of "Them Fightin' Phillies."
The dismissal of Chapman came directly from Bob (please don't quote me as saying I fired him) Carpenter Jr., president of the club, who said that "I have felt disappointed for some time with the showing of the team." He added:
"I will not say it was Ben's fault. I can't say it was anyone's fault. But the club was not producing. In that case, any business must make a change."

It was my feeling that since Durocher had come to me as a friend, it was my duty to treat what he had to tell me as just between us.
It's hardly necessary to tell you that when Parrott brought him the message from the Mahatma behind the strawstack on his Maryland farm that Leo hit the ceiling.
He wanted to know what he had done this time. Parrott told him "nothing at all," according to Rickey. But that Branch had said the team had collapsed completely "and that not even a miracle man could win with it."
This is the same team, incidentally, that now has won 9 of its last 10 games—8 victories and 1 defeat under Durocher and 1 victory under Burt Shotton.
So right now in the Brooklyn clubhouse under the stands, while his team is driving a sell-out crowd nuts by coming from behind again to win, 13 to 12, against a team that he is to be managing in less than two weeks, Durocher is following:
"Hell no, I won't resign. He's going to have to fire me and he's going to have to do it, man to man. Get him in here and let's have him do it like a man!"
By now, however, it would appear that Brother Branch had crawled completely under the hayrick and pulled it in after him. Suddenly he, Rickey, had vanished into the bright blue yonder.
THAT I KNOW because many times that afternoon and evening I tried to reach him by phone before I finally sat down and wrote a column, called "Frenzy In Flatbush." In this I made it plain that Durocher's days as manager of the Dodgers were numbered.
They finally did get young Rickey on the phone. All he wanted to do was wash his own hands of the matter. He did ask Parrott: "Did he quit?"
"Not yet," Harold told him. "Well then, as far as I can see," said Rickey Jr., "He's still the manager."
But was he? Durocher didn't know. In fact, he was to go on and win 5 games out of 6 and manage the NL All-Stars and make a scouting trip to Montreal before he finally found out yesterday morning that he was "out" in Flatbush and "in" in Harlem in the most sensational managerial shakeup baseball has ever known.

NEW YORK, July 17—The Brooklyn Dodgers were in complete disagreement today with the old axiom: "Don't change horses in midstream."
This adage was disproved by the Dodgers yesterday. Of the three National League clubs which changed managers in mid-season yesterday, Brooklyn was the only one to benefit immediately.
The Phillies, minus Ben Chapman, were beaten 8 to 2 by the Cardinals in a night game at St. Louis.
Leo Durocher, new manager of the New York Giants, lost ground right off the reel when his club's game at Pittsburgh was washed out. The Giants relinquished fourth place to Durocher's former charges, the Dodgers, who under their reinstated pilot, Grandpa Burt Shotton, downed Cincinnati 4 to 2.
Shotton's master-minding proved much more effective than Durocher's back-firings had been. He started the eighth inning by calling on Pinch Hatters Marvin Rackley and Dick Whitman. They responded by knocking out Ewell Blackwell with a triple and a double, fashioning a three-run rally which won the game.
Meanwhile, Boston's Braves increased their lead in the senior loop to 6½ games by taking a 12 to 10 slugfest from the Chicago Cubs.
Durocher was a fine fielder but never a great player because he couldn't hit and he really got by mainly on his brashness and a flaming competitive spirit.
But Durocher has been a successful manager on that same brashness and fighting. Ott was a failure because he sought to be the gentleman at all times. He couldn't produce.

Philly Scratches Head On Firing Of Ben Chapman

PHILADELPHIA, July 17—Philadelphia baseball fans forgot their pennant fever over the Amazing Athletics temporarily today and clamored for the reason Ben Chapman was dismissed suddenly as manager of the Phillies.

He added:
"I will not say it was Ben's fault. I can't say it was anyone's fault. But the club was not producing. In that case, any business must make a change."

ALLEN COOKE, erstwhile trainer, who was named acting manager immediately by Carpenter, was greeted with a defeat last night upon his debut when the St. Louis Cards trounced the club, 8-2.

Both Chapman and Carpenter said they were parting friends, although Ben explained:
"I have been hired and fired as a ball player many times. But this move by Carpenter is quite a shock. I wish that Carpenter would tell the public his real reason for my dismissal."

It was my feeling that since Durocher had come to me as a friend, it was my duty to treat what he had to tell me as just between us.

It's hardly necessary to tell you that when Parrott brought him the message from the Mahatma behind the haystack on his Maryland farm that Leo hit the ceiling.

He wanted to know what he had done this time. Parrott told him "nothing at all," according to Rickey. But that Branch had said the team had collapsed completely "and that not even a miracle man could win with it."

This is the same team, incidentally, that now has won 9 of its last 10 games—8 victories and 1 defeat under Durocher and 1 victory under Burt Shotton.

Giants came up with a cold, shrewd fellow who never quite fitted the scene.

Terry was a great ball player, but scarcely the New York type and in due course he wound up back in his native Memphis, Tenn., to be succeeded by Mel Ott, of Gretna, La.

Ott took over in 1942 and never made the grade either. Terry won pennants with players left to him by McGraw, but once they were used up didn't know how to rebuild. Ott never came close to a pennant and despite his tenure with the Giants from the age of 16 never seemed to fit in as pilot.

THEY HAVE a guy now who is moulded in the McGraw mould. Durocher is hated among ball players as much as McGraw ever was, and is as tough and merciless as McGraw at his worst. He fitted Brooklyn like a used glove while Larry MacPhail had the club, but the wonder of it all is that he lasted this long with Branch Rickey.

It was no secret that Rickey would have thrown Durocher out on his ear long ago but for the fact that when MacPhail departed the scene Durocher was a winning manager and beloved by the Brooklynites.

Rickey simply couldn't fire him.

The most he could do was to exact from Durocher a promise in the presence of the press that he would mend his ways when Rickey took over the club.

Rickey and his new-old manager, Burt Shotton, are gaited the same and have been friends and associated for more years than either cares to remember. Shotton is middle-aged, bespectacled, kindly, and without flash.

Durocher is the poised man of the Hollywood and Broadway spots with a fashion plate suit for cocktails and a snarl and epithet for umpire, and rival players.

OTT? HE IS one of the great characters in baseball history. He is popular and almost revered by some for his genuine strength and for his great earnestness and honesty, coupled

The Braves spotted the Cubs six runs in the first inning, then showed their class by getting six themselves in the top half of the second frame.

In the American League, Boston's Red Sox racked up their sixth win in seven starts when they downed Detroit for the third straight time, 5 to 3. Joe Dobson held the Tigers to seven hits in racking up his 11th win of the campaign.

The St. Louis Browns upset the New York Yankees, 10 to 4, by scoring five runs in the sixth inning.

Chicago's White Sox ended their losing streak by shading Washington, 3 to 2.

Curnutt, 21, Dies In Electric Chair

COLUMBUS, July 17—Elmer Curnutt, convicted 21-year-old Cincinnati slayer, died at 8:08 p. m. yesterday in Ohio penitentiary's electric chair.

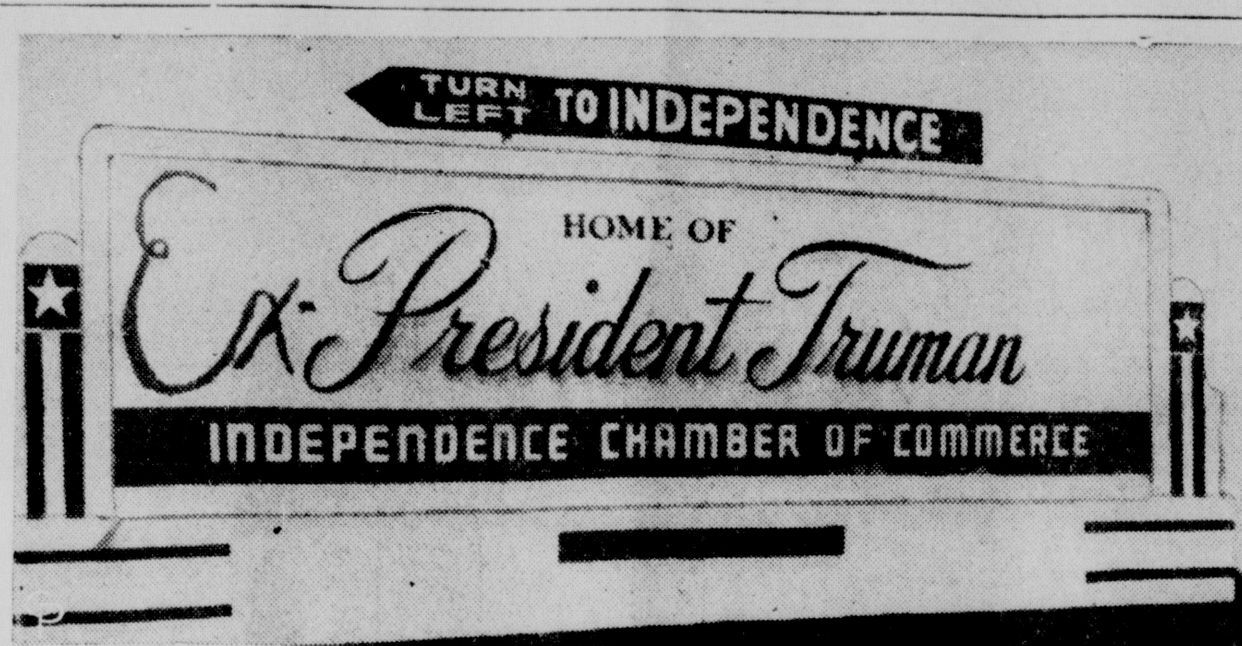

He walked to the execution chamber calmly, praying in company with the Rev. B. P. Gurnet, a Columbus minister. A few hours earlier he had been admitted to the Seventh Day Adventist church.

A death mask muffled Curnutt's voice as he repeated the Twenty-third Psalm. He was pronounced dead three minutes after the current went on.

Curnutt's uncle, 46-year-old Ova Curnutt, also is under a death penalty for the same slaying. The two men were convicted of killing 80-year-old Thomas Wilson of Cincinnati last December.

During the fiscal years 1946-47, only 4,311 women worked in Nebraska's industrial plants, compared with the record of 28,751 in 1943-44.

Striping Job Scheduled For U.S. Route 23

Route 23 from Circleville to the Franklin County line is on the state highway department agenda to be striped to give added protection and safety for motorists.

Robert F. Werner, state highway department division engineer, said this is part of work to be carried on in the eight counties of division six.

Glass beads superimposed upon the paint stripe in the center of the road will be experimented with as a means of giving better line visibility.

Werner said the beads will reflect the car lights at night enabling the motorist to better observe the hazardous spots.

Highway Sweeper To Clear Roads

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Magnetic highway sweepers will save motorists from flat tires in many states this summer according to the American Public Works Association.

Citing a recent survey, the Association reports that among states currently using electro-magnets on wheels to clear "tramp iron" from highways are Missouri, Kansas, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Oklahoma, North Dakota and Arkansas. The survey reported that an average of 8.2 pounds of metal per mile per year is collected, of which up to 75 percent is tire-damaging material.

Texas is the only state of the Union that may divide itself into five separate states.
